WORLD'S CHAMPION.

Title by Which Bob Fitzsimmons Can Now Be Called.

JACK DEMPSEY DEFEATED.

After Thirteen Rounds of Hard Fighting the Australian is Declared the Winner of the Great Fight at New Orleans. Full Description of the Fight by Rounds.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 15.—The long-talked-of prize fight for the middle-weight championship of the world and a purse of $12,000 between Bob Fitzsimmons, of New Zealand, and Jack Dempsey, the "Nonpareil," of the United States, came off last night at the Olympic club rooms. The gathering was one of the most notable in the history of the ring for two decades. Nine o'clock was the hour determined upon for the two men to enter the ring, but as early as 5 o'clock the four entrances to the amphitheater were besieged by crowds that vociferously demanded admission to the building.

JACK DEMPSEY.

A semblance of order was preserved by the efforts of a large force of police, but one hour later, when the doors were opened, there was a grand rush, which for a few moments threatened to swamp police officers, ticket takers and ushers before it. Into the amphitheater the waiting multitude poured like a raging torrent amid shouts, howls and cheering and counter cheers, which speedily made the place a veritable bedlam. One hour after the first man had passed through there was not a vacant foot of pine board in the vast structure, and the scene was a vivid reminder of the old English prints that depict the meetings of Sayers, Heenan, Jim Mace, Joe Goss and other heroes of the ring who did battle across the Atlantic in the days when prize fighting was regarded an exemplary sport.

BOB FITZSIMMONS.

The twenty-four foot ring with its posts almost as large in circumference as the trunks of a venerable oak, its hempen rope, strong enough to serve as a hauser, and its floor of sand packed and crushed until it could not be distinguished from asphalt, occupied the center of the amphitheater at an elevation of two feet. Outside of the ropes there was a passageway of six feet for the accommodation of the timekeepers, seconds and other officials.

A five strand barbed wire fence with a half dozen bars to the foot divided the outer edge of the ring from the table reserved for the press. Back of the latter were the fifty private boxes which had been reserved for distinguished members of the sporting fraternity, from far and near, well in the rear of these again and rising tier by tier from the ground to the very joists of the rafters were the benches allotted to the general public on the principle of first come first choice. One hundred dollars was the price of a box, and $10 that of a pine plank, but even at these prices the amphitheater, which was 150 feet in length by 120 in width might have been filled had it been half as large again.

It was within four minutes of 9 o'clock when Manager Guillot stepped over the ropes, and after procuring silence told the great audience that they were to see a fair square fight and that they would have to preserve order. If the police were unable to preserve it, he said that the members of the club were sworn to do so. With this admonition he introduced Capt. Alex. Brewster as referee. The latter had barely crossed the ropes when Fitzsimmons stepped upon the platform. He was enveloped in an ulster of Irish frieze, the bottom touching his feet and the upturned collar, the top of his head. He was accompanied by his seconds, Doc O'Connel and Jimmy Connelly, with Jimmy Robinson as bottle holder.

Having won the choice of corners he choose the southwest, and he had hardly been seated when the "Nonpareil," accompanied by his seconds, Jack McAuley, and Gus Tuthill and Mike Conley as bottle holder, vaulted lightly over the ropes. He had not seen his opponent before, and he sized him up keenly from his corner in the northeast end of the ring. He had on a light suit with a big Turkish towel wrapped around his neck, and spent considerable time in weighing the gloves. Captain of Police Barrett throwing aside several pair because they were a shade underweight. When this formality was concluded, the men were called upon to strip and weigh in.

Fitzsimmons weighed in at 150 $\frac{1}{2}$ and Dempsey at 147 $\frac{1}{2}$. While waiting for the call of time both men, who were shivering from the cold, walked briskly up and down the ring. No attempt was made to introduce them to each other although they had never met, and finally Jack crossed a few feet to the west, faced Fitzsimmons and extended his hand. The Australian took the hand, which he shook cordially. At this juncture Dempsey offered to bet \$1,000 to \$600 with Fitzsimmons. A San Francisco sport in one of the boxes handed out the money, but Capt. Barrett interposed and declared that a second attempt of the kind would land all the participants in the station house. Finally, at 9:30, the gong sounded, and both men advanced to the middle of the ring and shook hands.

First round—Both men sparred cautiously for opening. Fitzsimmons led with right giving Dempsey a resounding whack on the left jaw. Dempsey responded with right, reaching Fitzsimmons' face lightly. With heavy right and left-handers Fitz drove Dempsey to ropes, when latter clinched. After breaking away Dempsey caught his opponent fully in the mouth, following it up by a hard blow. Dempsey returned with heavy body blows and time was called. Dempsey made an ineffectual attempt at an upper cut as the gong sounded.

Second round—Both men went at each other without preliminaries. Fitz got in first blow on Dempsey's neck, getting return on right shoulder. Dempsey ran to avoid a vicious left-hander. Fitz followed, and letting out with right and left gave telling blows on Dempsey's head and breast. The latter began to show a weakness on wind, and was flushed and worried. For the first time he realized that he had met a foeman worthy of his steel. Fitz followed him to his own corner and hammered him again and again. Dempsey, to spare further punishment, clinched repeatedly. Out in the center once more Dempsey sent out a severe left-hand upper cut, and he avoided a right-hander just as time was called.

Third round—Dempsey was visibly weakened, and although his supporters shouted words of encouragement, the demonstration produced little effect for a moment. When, however, Fitzsimmons attempted a vicious right-hander, which missed its mark, Dempsey warmed up with the ferocity of a tiger, and several heavy blows were exchanged. The Australian, however, drove his opponent to his own corner and with a heavy breast blow sent him sprawling on the ground. Dempsey jumped up quickly, but was evidently groggy, and until time was called his adversary lightly punched him around the ring.

Fourth round—Both sparred for an opening. Dempsey led, giving a heavy face blow. He clinched to avoid a return. On separating, Dempsey gave Fitzsimmons a left-hander upper cut, and followed it up with a cannon ball in the ribs. There was a sharp interchange of blows in the center of the ring. Fitzsimmons got in a heavy right-hander on Dempsey's ribs, followed by a left in the jaw. Dempsey countered on the stomach, and Fitzsimmons simply laughed and sent him half spinning with a right-hander in the face, dodging back to avoid a return.

Fifth round—Fitzsimmons led with a right and neck blow, followed by right upper cut. Dempsey responded on opponent's face lightly. Heavy exchange of body blows followed. Dempsey repeated the ducking to avoid punishment. The Australian showed his advantage in reach, striking right and left. Dempsey essayed a terrific lunge with a left-handed upper cut, but the Australian dodged it and, returning, let out with his right on Dempsey's jugular, sending him to his knees. He scrambled to his feet only to receive right and left on his breast. It was apparent that Dempsey was a defeated man.

Sixth round—Plucking up courage and determination, Dempsey made a vigorous effort and tried to force the fighting. There was a rapid interchange of blows; got an upper cut, and gave one back in return. Fitz led with his left and gave one on the jaw that brought out a chorus of "Oh's." Dempsey clinched. He was badly winded. A right-hander on the neck sent him to his knees. As he fell, Fitz essayed a second with his left. Dempsey got his arms around Fitzsimmons' neck as he went down, and there was cries of foul. Fitz repeated, and Dempsey recovering his feet, the two exchanged blows until time was called.

Seventh round—Sparring for opening was followed by Fitz landing heavy blows on Dempsey's right ribs, nearly sending him to grass. Dempsey got in an upper-cut which Fitz returned, sent his man to the ropes. After a light interchange Dempsey administered a severe stomach blow which barely escaped going to the belt. Fitz fell in, and, with a smile, sailed in vicious and knocked his opponent right and left around the ring. Dempsey managed to clinch. Both men were close to the ropes when Fitz with a right rib blow, which was barely allowable under the circumstances, sent Dempsey sailing between the ropes. His seconds rushed to his assistance, but jumping away, he went at it hammer and tongs. His face was bleeding and the perspiration poured out from his back in a stream, while Fitz was as dry as a prairie under a tropical sun.

Eighth round—Fitz came up fresh as a spring violet. Dempsey was weak on his legs and decidedly groggy. He got two heavy breast blows at the start, and before he could respond Fitz had repeated with his right in face, and left in the stomach, he clinched. Fitzsimmons pushed him away, and struck him left and right a half dozen times in succession, ribs and neck, winding up with two body blows as the bell rang. Dempsey was next door to helpless.

Ninth round—Dempsey clinched at the start, pushed away. There was an exchange of body blows. Fitzsimmons let out with his long arms swinging in right and left. Men with money on the "Nonpareil," seeing that the game was up, began to edge toward the door. Dempsey repeatedly clinched to avoid punishment, but at every breakaway got heavy blows. While falling against the ropes Fitz got him in the left rib, whereat there were renewed cries of foul. Dempsey reached the center, sent in a slight right-hander on shoulder, and again retreated to the ropes as the round ended.

Tenth round—Fitz crowded Dempsey and landed a right body blow. Dempsey feinted and Fitz ducked. Fitz landed a terrible right. Dempsey clinched and pulled Fitz around the ring. Dempsey attempted to uppercut but missed and clinched Fitz around the legs. Fitz landed three left and Dempsey nearly fell. Fitz hit him a left on the nose and Dempsey ran away. Dempsey feinted and Fitz landed a terrible right upper cut. Fitz landed a left and sent Dempsey down. Fitz punched Dempsey in the stomach and the gong saved Dempsey who was down three times and was nearly out. Dempsey fought hard, but nature outclassed him.

Eleventh round—Bob crowded Jack and landed two lefts. Jack fell on the ropes. Fitzsimmons landed a terrific left and Dempsey staggered. Dempsey led for the stomach and Bob jumped away. Bob landed two terrific lefts and floored Dempsey. Bob knocked him down again, let him gain wind and landed a terrific right and left. This was Bob's round. The towel was thrown from Jack's corner, in token of defeat, but it did not go. It was to fool Fitz. Dempsey was down, and as McAufife did not expect the going he threw up the towel; but when the gong sounded he had one more chance, and he said the "throw-up" did not go, Jack would try again.

Twelfth round—Fitzsimmons trotted to the center with alacrity. He was smiling, as full of wind as in the sixth round, and made no effort to work hard. He allowed himself to receive a few childish body blows, and then with a left-hander in the jaw sent Dempsey on his back. He soon arose and went down again from a left-handed touch in the ribs. Rishing to his feet with difficulty, he tried to force his adversary into the center of the ring, but went down again in the effort. Fitz picked Dempsey up like a child, smoothed his hand over his head and held him in his arms for a second, then he went over to his own corner and sat on the ropes. Dempsey tried to get at him, but his seconds pulled him back as the gong sounded.

Thirteenth round—Dempsey staggered to the center of the ring. Little vitality was apparently left. He clinched at the first attempt of Fitz to strike. The Australian pushed him away, let out with a short arm, which barely touched him, and he fell to the ground. Twice he essayed to rise, but rolled over and over like a man in dying agonies. Time was called, and failing to respond the fight was awarded the New Zealand wonder, while the audience cheered again and again. From all appearances Fitz could have done the fight over again without leaving the ring. Dempsey was taken in a carriage to his boarding house, while Fitz put on his clothes and walked home with his seconds. The fight lasted forty-nine minutes.

FIGHTING FARMERS.

Two Members of an Alliance Refuse to Be Ejected, and a Riot Ensues.

FRANKLIN, Ky., Jan. 15.—A riot in the Simpson county Farmer's Alliance, which convened at Stephenson, in this county, Saturday last, was averted by prompt action.

Thomas Cusenberry and Enoch Rowland, two prominent farmers, were expelled from the subordinate lodge for unknown reasons.

The expulsion was not sanctioned by the unanimous vote of the lodge and the case was appealed to the high grand lodge of the county.

One faction contended that the meeting Saturday had no jurisdiction to hear the appeal, and the presence in the meeting of the two expelled members was contrary to rules of the order, and they were asked to retire, which they declined to do. And an effort was made to eject them, which was resisted, and during the proceedings pistols were freely drawn and a riot looked inevitable, and was only prevented by the timely presence and prompt action of D. B. Hunt, the sheriff of the county, who is a member of the order.

A GLUT OF RAISINS.

California Grape Growers Gives Timely Admonition.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 15.—The viticultural commissioner of the San Joaquin district in his annual report says the raisin business is the chief interest of grape growers of the San Joaquin valley. There are 2,300 vineyard proprietors in the valley. There are 56,430 acres planted in raisin grapes, 20,000 of which are in bearing, but not half of these in full bearing; 20,000 acres are also planted in the state outside of the valley.

When all these vineyards are in full bearing they will produce 7,650,000 boxes of raisins annually. The total consumption of raisins in the United States is 3,250,000 boxes annually, and in view of these facts the commissioner advises viticulturists to study the future of the industry carefully before planting any more raisin vineyards. He also discourages the planting at present of more wine vineyards.

GOLD EXCITEMENT IN IOWA

Over the Discovery of a Nugget in a Chicken's Caw.

BURLINGTON, Iowa, Jan. 15.—While cleaning the caw of a chicken Peter Brodbeck, living on the outskirts of Burlington, found a nugget of gold somewhat larger than a pea. It is supposed the fowl picked it up along the gravel bank of a neighboring stream, and as a result much excitement reigns and a search for more of the precious is going on.

INDIAN SITUATION.

The Hostiles No Nearer the Pine Ridge Agency.

FEARS OF ANOTHER OUTBREAK.

Iron Hawk Advising His Tribe Not to Surrender Their Arms—No Disposition Shown to Come Into Camp—Oklahoma Indians Disgusted With the Dance.

RUSHVILLE, Neb., Jan. 15.—The latest information from Pine Ridge is as follows:

The hostiles are apparently no nearer coming in now than they were twenty-four hours ago. They are still encamped in the same place they have occupied for two days, and have not expressed any desire to approach nearer the strong military force now ready for business. In the rear of the hostiles is Gen. Brooke and a large body of troops, but no movement was either made or expected.

Gen. Miles insists that the hostiles practically surrendered when they encamped within easy range of the big rifled guns, but the fact remains that the delegation of hostile chiefs and headmen, which was to have come in yesterday for the purpose of discussing the situation, failed to put in an appearance.

It is believed that Gen. Miles has demanded the surrender of the Indian who killed Lieut. Casey, Herder Miller and the trooper of the Ninth cavalry. All these killings have been cowardly murders.

Late last night it became known that Iron Hawk was arguing viciously and noisily in the hostile camp against the proposition to surrender their arms. He and others insist that the hostiles will be murdered by the soldiers if they give up their guns. An early morning stampede to the Bad Lands was by no means improbable, and there was information to the effect that the warlike Brules would break away from the tempestuous Ogallalas at midnight. This did not occur.

A detachment of infantry escorting a wagon train consisting of thirty wagons reached here yesterday. They were sent for supplies and provisions for Gen. Brooke's command. Scouts were sent in advance and reported bands of hostiles signalling from hill to hill with firebrands, but no attack was made.

Soldiers Ordered Home.

OMAHA, Jan. 15.—On the assurance of Gen. Miles that no more danger to settlers is anticipated four companies of militia stationed on the frontier were ordered to return home yesterday.

There are still thirteen companies in the field, but they will be ordered home by the end of this week unless another outbreak occurs.

Indians Stopped Dancing.

GUTHRIE, O. T., Jan. 15.—Reports from the various Indian reservations adjoining this territory are to the effect that the Indians have become disgusted with the Messiah prophecies and have stopped dancing.

ENLARGING OUR MARKETS.

Secretary Rusk's Views on the Exportation of Farm Products.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Secretary Rusk has been enlisted in the movement of W. S. Delano to advance the exportation of our corn to foreign countries, for which an appropriation is asked of congress. Secretary Rusk has written a letter to Senator Manderson, in which he says that he has commissioned Col. Murphy as a special agent of the agricultural department, to make a report on this subject, and he intends to enter extensively upon the work.

"There is, however, one consideration which I think ought not to be lost sight of," says Secretary Rusk; "that is that representatives of other than the corn-surplus states and the members of our agricultural organizations generally might feel indisposed to support a special appropriation having in view the extension of foreign markets for a single product. The appropriation could be made for the purpose of an effort toward the extension of foreign markets of American agricultural products."

The secretary then called attention to the absolute importance to our agricultural interests of a careful study of all the foreign markets in order that we may be fully informed as to the demand in foreign markets for such goods as we can produce, and as to the best manner in which said goods must be prepared in order to satisfy the foreign customer.

He suggests this could be done by a general appropriation to enable the secretary of agriculture to make a careful study of and report upon the availability of foreign markets for agricultural products and to adopt special means to increase the export of our agricultural products to foreign countries.

Every effort is being made now by the agricultural and state departments to enlarge our export trade for farm products and congress will at this session be asked to lend assistance in the way of an appropriation for the appointment of special agents to go abroad and work up and report upon the markets there and the plausibility of enlarging the sales of our surplus. It is likely that Senator Manderson will offer an amendment to the agricultural appropriation bill to this effect.

Fatal Runaway.

PERU, Ind., Jan. 15.—An accident occurred near this city yesterday, by the overturning of a wagon load of wheat, in which one child was killed, the mother fatally injured, and the father, William Shafer, and another child, seriously hurt. The horses became unmanageable coming down a hill, upsetting the wagon.

Suicide on the Track.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Jan. 15.—William Elks, aged 60 years, dissipated, lay down on the Nickel-Plate track last night and was cut to pieces by a freight train. He leaves a widow and several children.

PLANS OF THE VATICAN.

The Pope's Latest Encyclical—New Policy Toward South American Republics.

ROME, Jan. 15.—The Tribuna says that the pope has submitted proofs of his encyclical on the social question to several eminent European savants. This journal also says that the papal advisers are still discussing the advisability of the Vatican advocating state intervention in disputes between capital and labor. It is alleged that the English clergy of the church advocate such intervention, while the French clergy are against it.

The pope has appointed a commission to study the religious situation of the South American republics with the view to reorganizing the episcopates on a system similar to that prevailing in Brazil, which is based on common law and religious liberty. The pope is of the opinion that the era of the concordat has passed, and that the church has everything to gain by claiming simply a reign of liberty for all. Above everything, the pope wishes the clergy to be in line with both the political and social situations of their respective countries.

Pious, enlightened and eminent ecclesiasts will report on the divers modes of reorganization, also on the value of Catholic congresses, and National councils, and the relations of the church and state and the movements of political parties. Monsignor Ferrata has been specially charged with the care of this new policy of the Roman Catholic church towards South America.

Dr. Hurd Von Schlozer, the representative of Prussia at the Vatican, in an audience granted him by the pope, announced that, while the German government was unable to accede to the return of the Jesuits to Prussia, all other religious bodies were free to return. The permission necessary for the return of the Jesuits, Dr. Von Schlozer said, was withheld for the present.

EVENING BULLETIN.

DAILY, EXCEPT SUNDAY.
ROSSER & McCARTHY,
Proprietors.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 15, 1891

DR. C. W. MATHERS, Judge Morford and W. A. Wilson, of Nicholas, and W. A. Morris, of Robertson, all want to represent that district in the next Legislature. The fight promised to be red-hot.

THE editor of this paper not only gets out the EVENING BULLETIN and WEEKLY BULLETIN, but he assists largely, through these papers, in getting out about half a dozen exchanges. The latter work is "free gratis," of course.

JUDGE SAM J. PUGH, of Vanceburg, is mentioned as likely to be the next Republican nominee for Attorney General. Just imagine the Judge "locking horns" with Jack Hendrick in a joint debate on the political issues of the hour.

THE Warren County Wheel has indorsed Dr. Clark for Governor, with Hon. Cassius M. Clay for second choice. The skirmishing among the candidates is getting pretty lively. They are getting their followers in line for the fight next summer.

In the last issue of the Bourbon News there were ten news items on one page copied bodily from this paper. The EVENING BULLETIN must be a great help to about half a dozen editors we could name, the News not being alone in this business of "appropriating."

COLONEL WILLIAM O. BRADLEY says he is "out of politics," but those who profess to know are confident he will be the next Republican nominee for Governor. However, Kentucky Republicans are not dwelling together in entire harmony, and there are those who will fight him bit by bit if he should put himself forward.

THE news from Owenton is that the brilliant Hon. Evan E. Settle will not enter the contest for Attorney General. Judging from the talk in the papers, Fleming's eloquent young Democrat, Hon. W. J. Hendrick, has a good lead in the race for that office. And it will take a runner from Runnersville to beat him.

SEVENTY-TWO voters at Winchester will practically enjoy the privilege of deciding all municipal contests at that place this year. They are the only ones who registered under the law which recently went into effect up there, and there is only one colored man in the number. Evidently the progressive city of Winchester isn't much struck on the registration of voters.

AFTER a careful canvass among its subscribers, the Farm and Home, published at Chicago and also at Springfield, Mass., says: "Certain it is that Mr. Cleveland's phenomenal popularity among farmers renders it politically senseless for any other man to strive for first place on the Democratic ticket." The vote stood: For Cleveland, 71,770; Hill, 17,114. If Governor Hill is a sensible man, he will take the New York Senatorship, and bide his time till '96.

IT looks like the east side of Market street, between Second and Third, will be given up almost entirely to the saloon business before long. There are about fifteen houses on the square and liquor is sold in seven of them now, and will be sold in another soon if Council grants permission. Application has been made for license to run a saloon in the building just vacated by H. Oberstein.

The street is one of the most frequented in the city, and ladies who pass that way now on County Court days and Saturday evenings are frequently greatly annoyed by the crowds of half-drunk negroes, who loaf about the entrances to the saloons. The Marshal should see that such crowds are dispersed hereafter.

FROM the Bowling Green Times it appears that the impression is gaining upon the citizens of that place that sixteen Councilmen are more than the city needs to look after its interests, and an effort will be made to reduce the number to eight when the Legislature meets again. "But a more radical and important reform than this is also in contemplation," says the Louisville Courier-Journal. "This is to abandon the ward system in electing Councilmen and to choose those functionaries by a general vote. This method of selecting Councilmen is gradually obtaining recognition as the best by which to destroy the at present omnipotent sway of the ward bummer in municipal affairs. The heelers are easily manipulated matters when he has only one small precinct to look after, but when he is required to spread himself over a whole city he finds the hitherto despised 'respectable element' too much for him. But the Constitutional convention is doing a little tinkering on the question of municipal government and may forestall the Park City."

"Laughter From Start to Finish."

That new farce comedy, "A Pair of Jacks," which is proving such a success wherever played, will be produced at the opera house to-night. The company was at Lexington Monday night and the Press says:

"The best feature of the entertainment was the music. Everybody sang. It was very evident that no one was allowed in that company who didn't have a voice of some description. Miss Winifred Johnson is the best female banjo performer ever in the Lexington Opera House. She was encored until she got tired—and the audience, too—of clapping. The topical choruses sung by Knowles, Booker and Roach, also made a hit. The baritone of Will M. Armstrong is superb. His voice is rich and musical and his dramatic talent adds graphically to the effect of his vocalism. Henry C. Stanley's imitation of the stutter fairly convulsed the audience. The Highland Fling, danced by Misses Johnson, Lamont and Anderson, who were attired in perfect Scotch style, was unusually good.

"The comedy work of R. G. Knowles and George A. Booker, who were the 'Pair of Jacks,' one a lawyer and the other a doctor, both the image of each other, and the warmest of friends, was excellent. The ludicrous situations which grow out of their likeness to each other form the links on which the plot is hung. A night spent with the 'Pair of Jacks' is a night well spent. Nothing but laughter from start to finish, and good, wholesome enjoyment."

"Outwearing Justice."

Says the Lexington Press of the Boile Robert murder case: "It was tried once with a verdict of nineteen years. A new trial was granted because one of the jurors had indulged in drinking whisky, while having the case under consideration. At the second trial a mistake in copying the instructions made them provide punishment not less than ten nor more than twenty-one years. The jury brought in a verdict of ten years. It was then discovered that the instructions were incorrect, and, as to punishment, should have read from two to twenty-one years. The error was done by the copyist, who read ten for two in Judge Morton's indifferent caligraphy. The jury was sent back with the corrected instructions, and they returned a verdict of two years, which was reversed on the ground that the Judge should have granted a new trial in place of correcting the verdict."

The Louisville Times remarks: "It is by aid of such trifles as these that crime outwears justice, and the machinery of the courts becomes contumacious for slowness and inefficiency."

Spasmodic Advertising.

We all recognize that as between the fellow who works "by fits and starts" and the chap who plods along and keeps at it steadily, the plodder gets there every time. The spasmodic fellow may create an occasional impression, but the results of his fitful labors are dissipated in the intervals.

The occasional display of fireworks only serves the purpose of preventing his being forgotten altogether; while the man who works and keeps working, constantly improves his position and prospects.

So it is with advertising. It is the repeated "ad" and the sustained effort that tell. We don't mean the "ad" that is never changed, but the one that is ever changing, but never omitted! The wise advertiser keeps always before the people to whom he desires to sell his wares. When you want to quit business stop advertising or advertise only "once in a while."—Exchange.

Where Is Joe Mulhatton?

The American Dairyman is responsible for the story of "the existence of a cow at Chillicothe, O., of Jersey-Short-horn-Ayrshire blood and the property of Mr. R. Hansborough, which gives black milk. Her milk produces a fair amount of cream, which is a trifle lighter when churned and makes a butter resembling coal tar, but as palatable as though of golden yellow. At first there was some hesitancy about using the milk in any way, but now it is enjoyed as well as any other. Chemists in Richmond and Washington have analyzed the milk both fresh and in the butter and cannot account for its sable color, but attribute it to some unique coloring pigment in the corpuscles of her blood."

AMONG the divorces granted at Cincinnati Monday was one to Mary Young from Geo. Young. The Enquirer says: "They were married in 1886. Three months afterward he went to the work house for larceny. On his release he went to Maysville, and got into trouble. He broke jail and the next heard of him he was at Los Angeles, Cal."

Young is one of the fellows who grabbed a diamond stud out of Dr. Phillips' shirt front at a Democratic rally at the court house two years ago. They were arrested, fled the country. The indictment still stands against them.

Churches and Preachers.

There are said to be 4,400 churches and 500 parsonages in this State, the estimated value of which is $13,000,000.

Elder Kokendoffer has resigned as pastor of the Millersburg Christian Church, and will go to Kansas City to take charge of a church at that place.

The Lexington Press has received nearly $200 for Rev. George O. Barnes, and Richmond has sent $200 in answer to his appeal from Scotland.

The Kentucky Methodist evidently means business. A recent issue contains the following: "The brethren will please send in notice of all Methodist people who give dances in their homes, and are not disciplined for their violation of the rules of the church.

In a letter to the Paris Kentuckian-Citizen, Rev. J. A. Sawyer, Presiding Elder of the Cumberland Gap district, says: "I have advertised for sealed bids to build church houses in Hazard, Perry County, and Hindman, Knott County. Neither of these counties has a church at present.

Opposed to Taxing Cemeteries.

The Louisville Times correspondent says: "Referring again to Judge Whittaker's speech against the taxing of cemeteries, later reports show that he put himself into the twilight picture, where, with only the moon and constellations for witnesses, he saw coming toward him in the pretty cemetery a beautiful woman. Jack Hendrick, who sat by him, is said to have whispered to him that it wasn't right for a man of his age to be meeting a beautiful woman in so lone a spot at that hour, and it was then he brought in the tax-gatherer and the sea-gull in the capacity of chaperones. Everybody wondered if sea-gulls ever got as far away from home as the banks of the Ohio at Maysville, but the word-painting wasn't spoiled by any interruptions from irreverent or irrelevant questions."

Brief Paragraphs About Railways.

The gross earnings of the C. & O for 1890 were $7,075,671, an increase of $1,481,181 over 1889.

The gross earnings of the Kentucky Central last year amounted to $1,001,041, an increase of $25,198 over 1889.

Nearly 5,800 miles of railroad was built in this country last year, 700 miles more than in 1889. Kentucky built 222 miles, only five Southern States making a better showing.

It is figured that the United States has a mile of railroad for each 400 of population and each 22 miles of area, while the balance of the world has a mile for each 7,500 of population and 236 miles of area.

American Must Have the Same Rights.

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 15.—Advices from St. Johns, N. F., are to the effect that the visit of Colonial Secretary Bond to Washington to negotiate a reciprocity treaty with the United States resulted in a fiasco. Unless Americans can secure a monopoly of Newfoundland bait they will not open their markets to fish from that colony. If French and Canadian fishermen are to get free bait the same international privilege must be accorded to Americans.

Fires in New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—A fire which originated yesterday morning, at 1:30 o'clock, in the third story of 195 West street, occupied by Beattie & Bottie, lithographers, quickly spread to 193, adjoining, occupied by Sturgess & Westcott, dealers in oils and paints, both of which places were entirely gutted. The loss is placed at $100,000. The fire is supposed to have been caused by an explosion of some of the oils.

A Noteworthy Exception.

From the Kimball (S. D.) Graphic: "While the columns of the Graphic are open to any and all unobjectionable advertisements, yet it is quite impossible for us to speak knowingly of the merits of various articles of merchandise advertised. Particularly is this true of patent medicines. But there are exceptions occasionally and a noteworthy exception is the celebrated Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This now universally known medicine has been advertised in the Graphic for four or five years but not until recently had we any personal knowledge of its wonderful efficacy which has come about through the prevailing influenza and the stubborn cough that has so often attended it. In the writer's family this medicine has on several occasions this winter cured a cough that baffled any and all other medicines, and the number of families in Kimball and vicinity, in which this remedy has been used with like effects, attests to its value as a specific for coughs and colds of every nature." AMONG the divorces granted at Cincinnati Monday was one to Mary Young from Geo. Young. The Enquirer says: "They were married in 1886. Three months afterward he went to the work house for larceny. On his release he went to Maysville, and got into trouble. He broke jail and the next heard of him he was at Los Angeles, Cal."

Young is one of the fellows who grabbed a diamond stud out of Dr. Phillips' shirt front at a Democratic rally at the court house two years ago. They were arrested, fled the country. The indictment still stands against them.

The L. & N. and K. C. Officials Here This Morning on Tour of Inspection.

President E. Norton and Vice President M. H. Smith, of the L. and N., and H. E. Huntington, Vice President and General Manager of the K. C., arrived here last evening in their private coaches, the two former coming by way of the C. and O., and the latter by way of the K. C. Mr. Smith is also President of the K. C. Other minor officials accompanied them. Two parties also came in over the K. C. on hand cars, having inspected the road between this city and Paris.

The night was spent here, and the entire party left this morning about 9 o'clock for Livingston, where the K. C. connects with the Knoxville branch of the L. and N. The trip is no doubt for the purpose of a thorough inspection of the K. C., preparatory to important changes in the time card. Just what these changes are to be has not yet been made public, but the road and the train service will be greatly improved.

It is said the name Kentucky Central will be dropped altogether, and the road will be known as a branch of the L. & N.

"During the year 1890," says the Breeders' Gazette, "no less than 339,535 cattle were bought in Chicago for direct export. That number is within 47,000 of the total exports from the United States for the year. The number exported from the United States during 1889 was 299,301, for 1888, 144,013, and for 1887, 93,693."

The Department of Agriculture estimates the products of corn, wheat and oats of 1890 as follows: Corn, 1,489,970,000 bushels; wheat, 399,362,000 bushels; oats, 523,621,000 bushels. The supply of corn for consumption, per head of population, is twenty-three bushels, or eleven bushels less than last year, while the rate of yield was lower in 1887 and 1881, years of severe drought. The December condition of growing wheat is placed higher than for two years past.

The Bee says: "The first day of his spree he spent nearly half of the amount. He will now go to work again at $20 per month. The old adage, 'A fool in his money are soon parted,' comes in very appropriate in this case."

THE Georgetown Gazette says: "Before Pascal Lang left Georgetown, Mr. Single settled with him for his share of the wheat, and paid to his attorney, Young & McBeth, about $1,200, and, with the proceeds of the private sale, the cash must have amounted to near $1,500. The amount Lang got of this, of course we know nothing."

Lang made himself scarce, and has not been located yet.

MAYSVILLE theater-goers need not expect the opera house managers to bring first-class companies here unless they are patronized more liberally than heretofore. After settling with Nat Goodwin, Harry Taylor, the late manager, had $3 left of the receipts, and was in the hole for the expenses of the house for the night. The company that plays here to-night will fill a week's engagement at one of the leading theaters in Cincinnati next week. The company stopped at only three other cities in Kentucky on the present tour.

"R. G. KNOWLES, as Judge Jack, can not be too much extolled. His comedy has an original savor which is extremely pleasurable. The ovation he received at the hands of the audience was richly deserved. With a pleasantly modulated voice, a magnetic manner, and a trick of appealing directly to his hearers, it is no wonder that he has achieved such a success."

That's the way the Lexington Leader talks about one of the company who will present "A Pair of Jacks" at the opera house to-night. Go and see this play.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she was a child, she cried for Castoria. When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria. When she had children, she gave them Castoria.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Proceedings of the Senate and House.

THE SILVER COINAGE MEASURE.

It is Debated in the Senate Nearly All Day and Then a Vote Taken—The Army Appropriation Bill Passes the House.

Other Washington Items.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The house yesterday passed the army appropriation bill, amended so as to provide that land grant railroads shall receive for army transportation but 50 per cent. of the price paid to them by private parties for similar services.

The District of Columbia appropriation bill was carried into committee of the whole and a five-hour limit of debate agreed upon, pending which the house at 5:10 p.m. adjourned.

The senate devoted the entire day from 10 o'clock until adjournment, discussing the financial bill. Messrs. Ingalls and Jones delivered set speeches.

At 2 o'clock debate under the ten minute rule began, and was participated in by Messrs. Morgan, Hawley, Vest, Gorman, Call and others. At 5:45 p.m. a vote was taken on the adoption of Mr. Stewart's free coinage amendment, resulting, yeas 42, nays 30.

The fourth section, providing for the issue of $200,000,000 of 2 per cent. bonds, was struck out—yeas 48, nays 19; also, the first section, for the purchase of 12,000,000 ounces of silver at the market price; also, the second section, limiting the compulsory requirement of deposit of bonds by National banks to $1,000.

Mr. Plumb moved to strike out the third section as to National bank currency and to insert in lieu the following: "That the secretary of the treasury is authorized to replace all sums of National bank notes hereafter permanently retired and cancelled by the issue in lieu thereof like sums in United States notes of the description and character of the United States notes outstanding and authorized by the act of March 3, 1863, entitled 'An act to provide ways and means for the support of the government.'"

The senate, at 8:10, discussed this amendment.

Behringer Sea Question.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Representative Enloe, of Tennessee, introduced a resolution in the house yesterday calling attention to the action of the Canadian government in trying to carry the Behringer sea controversy to the supreme court, and declaring that this action is in derogation of the dignity of the United States. The resolution provides further that a copy of the resolution shall be sent to the British government.

Gen. Hooker, a Democratic member of the house foreign committee, speaking of the supreme court Behringer sea move yesterday said: "It is a singular move in diplomacy. If negotiations were pending, it was a little discourteous to Mr. Blaine. But Mr. Blaine will come out all right. I have great confidence in him. I differ with him in politics, but have great confidence in his ability to manage anything he undertakes. He is the soul of the cabinet."

Coinage Weights and Measures.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The house committed on coinage, weights and measures yesterday postponed consideration of the Bland free coinage bill, which was made a special order of business for the day. The committee considered it best to wait until the senate bill should come before it, and a resolution was adopted inviting the director of the mint to address the committee on Wednesday next on the effect of the passage of the Bland and senate silver bills.

Senator Hearst Unchanged.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Senator Hearst's condition has changed but little since yesterday. He passed a comparatively comfortable night, but his physicians note no improvement in his case.

No Commercial Treaty.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 15.—The British government have so far restricted Newfoundland in her negotiations with Washington that the possibility of the United States entering into a commercial treaty has been almost entirely destroyed. The representations made to the British government by the authorities at Ottawa as to the effect such a discrimination against Canada would have if the proposed reciprocal trade arrangement was made between the United States and Newfoundland have opened the eyes of the home government to the wisdom of not allowing it to be carried out in the form suggested by England.

Passenger and Gravel Train Collision.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Nine passengers on the Long Island Rapid Transit railroad were injured in a collision that occurred near Denton station, shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday morning. An east bound gravel train collided with a west bound passenger train, and two of the passenger cars were derailed and thrown on the side track. Six people in all were seriously injured. Their names are Miss A. Flannigan, Mrs. Harriman, Mark Miller, Sam Brown, Conductor Edward Bugbee and Engineer Ennis. A number of others received minor bruises and scratches.

Disastrous Fire in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Jan. 15.—This city was visited by another disastrous fire yesterday which caused a loss of $100,000. The fire was first discovered in the premises of the Dominion Tubular Lamp company, on Craig street, and spread on each side, burning out the Tombeau & Company, cigar manufacturers; M. W. Railston, iron founder; R. White & Company, boot and shoe manufacturers, besides a number of smaller properties. A heavy wind and snow storm greatly impeded the firemen.

Senator Cameron Has an Opponent.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 15.—Representative A. L. Taggart has entered the contest for the United States senatorship, as an independent candidate, against Senator Cameron. Mr. Taggart has made an appeal to the different grangers in the state to assist him.

Man's Tendency Upward.

Nothing is more evident from history than the fact that weaker bodies of men driven out by stronger do not necessarily relapse into barbarism, but frequently rise even under the most unfavorable circumstances to a civilization equal or superior to that from which they have been banished. Out of very many examples showing this law of upward development a few may be taken as typical.

The Slavs, who sank so low under the pressure of stronger races that they apparently gave the modern world a new word to express the most hopeless servitude, have developed powerful civilizations peculiar to themselves. The barbarian tribes who, ages ago, took refuge amid the sandbanks and morasses of Holland, have developed one of the world's leading centers of civilization. The wretched peasants who, about the Fifth century took refuge from invading hordes among the lagoons and mud banks of Venetia, developed a power in art, arms and politics which is among the wonders of human history.

The Puritans, driven from the civilization of Great Britain to the unfavorable climate, soil and circumstances of early New England; the Huguenots, driven from France, a country admirably fitted for the highest growth of civilization, to various countries far less fitted for such growth; the Irish peasantry, driven in vast numbers from their own island to other parts of the world, on the whole less fitted to them—all are proofs that, as a rule, bodies of men once enlightened, when driven to unfavorable climates and brought under the most depressing circumstances, not only retain what enlightenment they have, but go on increasing it.—Andrew D. White in Popular Science.

Railway Whistles.

An eminent Glasgow aural surgeon, Dr. Thomas Barr, has communicated to the British Medical association some valuable data concerning the injurious effects of railway whistles upon the hearing. In railway whistles the arrangement for regulating the pressure of steam passing through from the boiler to the whistle is not sufficiently delicate. If the boiler should be under high pressure the whistle is very much louder and shriller than when it is under low pressure, so that when a passenger train is leaving a station for a long run, and having therefore its boiler under high pressure, the whistle is unnecessarily loud and shrill just when those qualities are least required.

Dr. Barr urges upon the attention of the association the adoption of lower pitched whistles, with proper regulators, so as to lessen the present jarring of sensitive ears and nerves. The question of whether a whistle of lower pitch than that usually employed would be as efficient as an acoustic signal is said to have been solved by the introduction on a Scotch railway of a new form of whistle, very much resembling an organ pipe.

The steam is forced on the lower edge of a brass tube closed at the upper end, and the sonorous impulses are taken up by the current of air in the tube and immensely reinforced, the pitch depending upon the length of the tube, as well as upon the force of the blast. The sound resembles very much a steamboat whistle, being loud and much lower in pitch, and therefore less painful to the ear than the ordinary railway whistle.—New Orleans Picayune.

How to Succeed in Life.

A strong will, a patient temper and sound common sense, when united in the same individual, are as good as a fortune to their possessor. Barring untoward accidents, the man endowed with these qualities, who starts on his career with a determination to reach a desirable position, does reach it.

Our admiration is sometimes bespoken for successful people who are said to have "leaped over every obstacle." Biographers of eminent men are particularly fond of making their heroes arrive at the goal of their hopes by this steeplechase process. But the truth is that impetuous spirits who charge at every impediment in their path on the sink-or-swim, survive-or-perish plan, unless favored with extraordinary luck, are more apt to sink than to swim, to perish than to survive. It is advisable to go round obstacles that you might break your neck in attempting to take at a flying leap. Policy is as necessary to success in most cases as energy.—New York Ledger.

Crossing Broadway.

It is a curious sight to stand at one of the Broadway crossings and watch the women get over, past the carts, cabs, wagons, horse cars and carriages. Not more than 50 per cent. of the number dare to attempt it alone, preferring to wait for the escort of the gallant policeman or protecting male who may be going that way. But now and then we see a woman who "dares and does." Grasping her skirts in some mysterious region she lifts them until she feels tolerably confident that they are displaying enough, and none too much, ankle; then she poises herself on the edge of the curb, and glancing quickly up and down darts out into what seems to be a region of perpetual motion. More than once her progress is interrupted midway, but she calmly pauses and, holding her breath, her temper and her petticoats, waits until the coast is temporarily clear.—New York World.

A Common Disease.

Laryngitis is much more common in adult males than in females, as would be expected from the fact that men are more exposed to changes of temperature than are women. The attack is sudden, and the disease rapid in its course. The person on swallowing feels a pain in the region of the larynx. The breathing has a long drawn hissing sound. The voice is husky and croaking. There is a "croupy" cough.

If the inflammation is confined to the larynx the expectoration is clear and thin; if it extends to the windpipe and the bronchial tubes, as it often does, the expectoration is thick and is coughed up. The pulse is rapid, but the tongue is moist and the fever slight. If the disease progresses breathing, speaking and swallowing become exceedingly difficult.—Youth's Companion.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Jan. 15.—A sharp shock of earthquake was felt here early Wednesday morning. It sounded more like the cracking of buildings during a severe frost than the usual rumbles.
